Let's make a Pact. Don't break my API!

Frank Kilkommins — SmartBear

60+% of organizations cite microservices as a leading driver for API growth in the next 2 years. The benefits of decoupled capabilities are hard to maintain at scale. Extensibility techniques and API management tools by themselves are not preventing breaking changes or sub-par developer experiences.

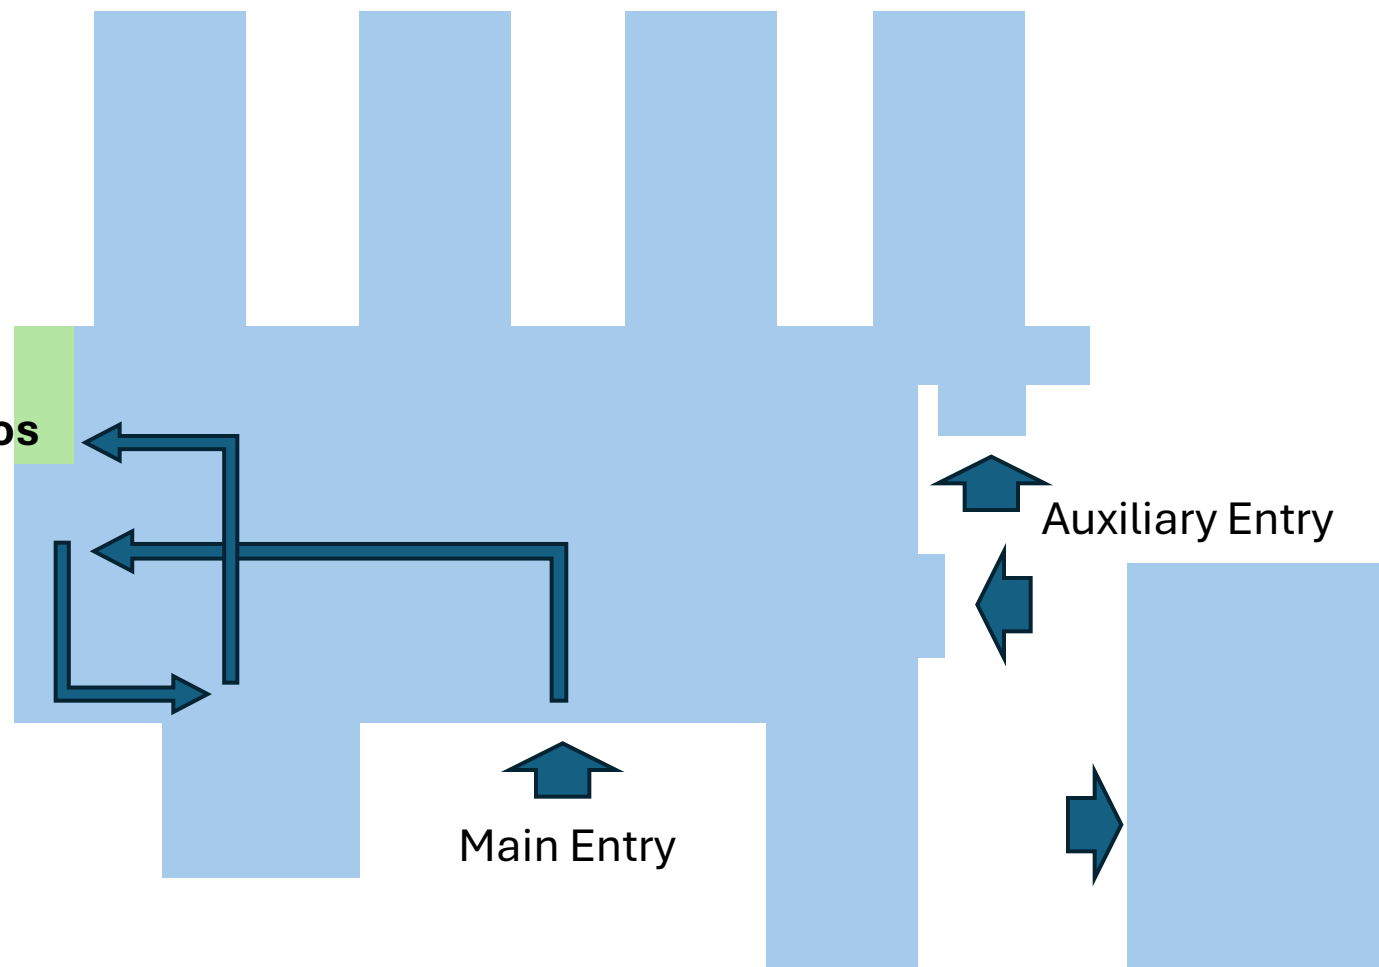

In this session, we'll introduce Bidirectional Contract Testing — and dive into how contract testing capabilities can empower teams to evolve APIs safely while still leveraging their investments in microservices. Teams can quickly scale by utilizing existing mocking and testing tool investments to get visibility on API consumers. Understand what's breaking, what's not, and when a break is a good choice!

Walk away with?

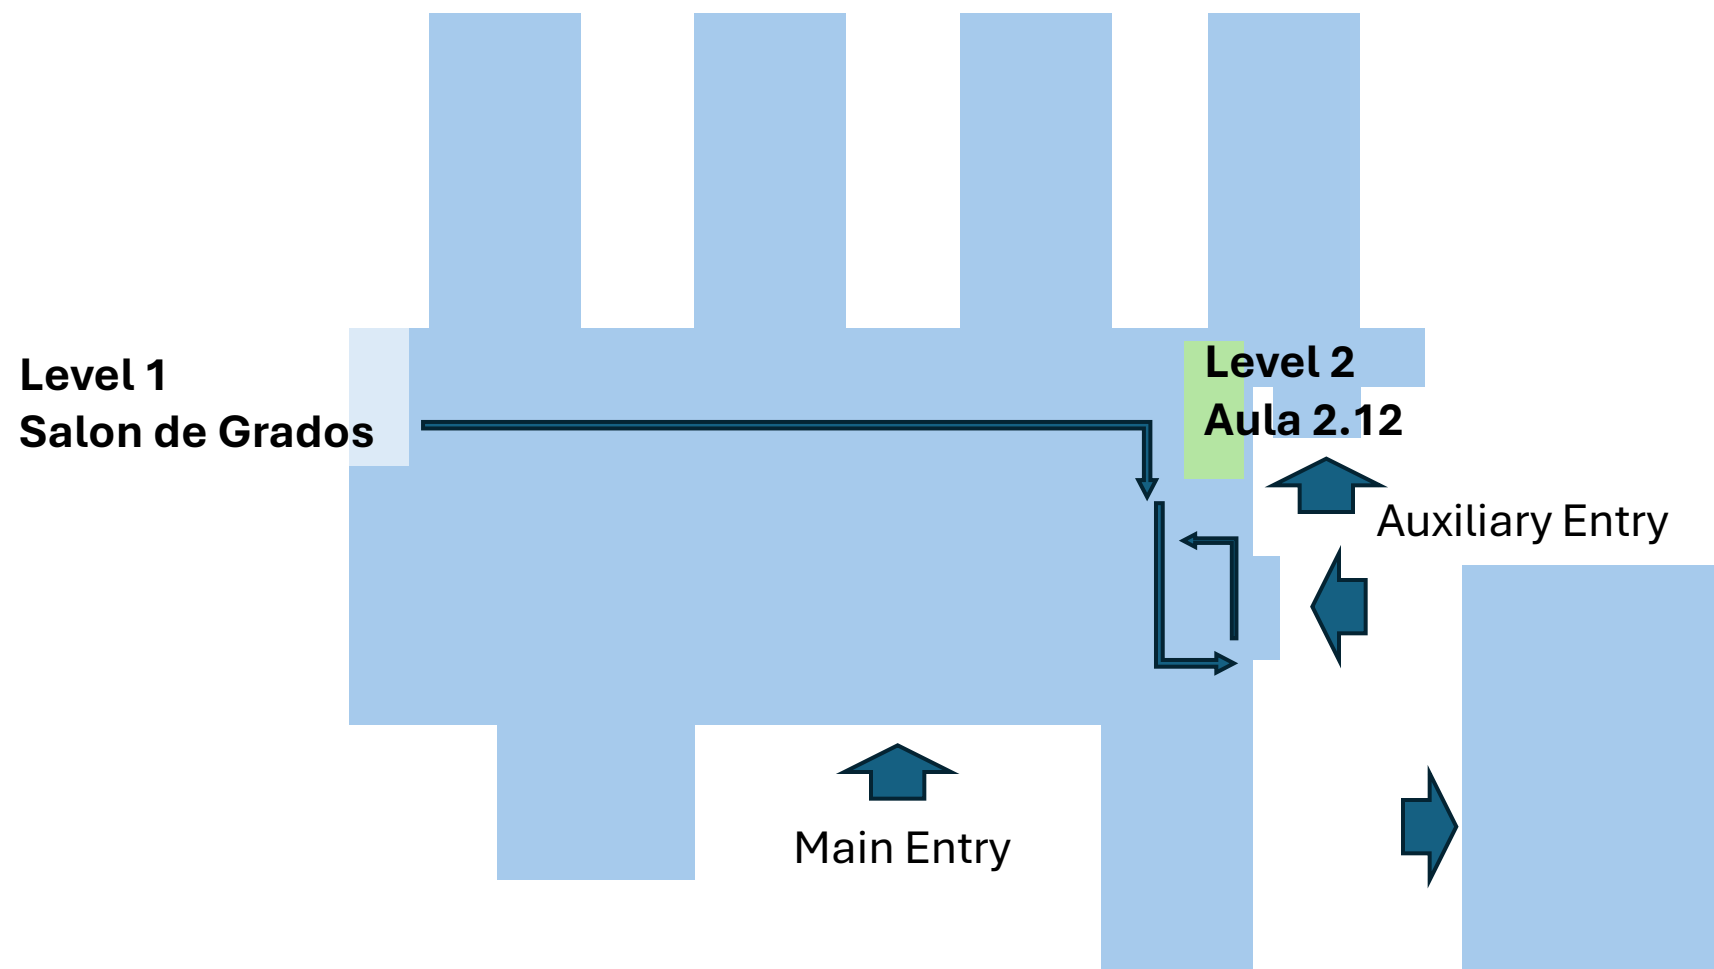

- Understanding of challenges in scaling microservices
- How to design APIs for future needs
- Why extensibility and API mgmt. are not enough
- Overview of contract testing and how it can change your thought process on the testing pyramid
- Scenarios in action — don't break your promise!
